The husband whom the New Brooklyn story strains be a to be insed in Misseaux. wife left behind moped for a day and a night. He looked at the stars. He wept bitter tears. He would have taken to poetry, but his words were too profane for verse as sacred as his grief.

Relief come in an unexpected way. The wife took most of the furniture with her. Next gay she sent a teamster for the family cows. Then up rose the injured husband in his wrath. The teamster arose also, but it was in order to flee and save himself from a thrashing. "She can have the furniture, but she don't get the cows." So swore roundly the deserted tiller of the soil. And the tide of his grief was stayed. He is now simply the maddest ex-husband in all that county.

THE PASSING OF THE LYMPH.

The Koch lymph is heard from again at Barlin comes home to say he believes the stuff has killed him. "They have killed them off by hundreds over there. declares this returned patient, who is Dr. PAINTER, of Pittsburg. The doctor also says that Prof. Vincnow, who has performed hundreds of nutopsies in lymph cases, has established the fact that instead of working as a cure the lymph will actually transfer tuberenloais, and that an analysis of it will disclose the presence of lacteria.

Nearly all the German physicians of reputation and skill have discarded the lymph, according to Dr. PAINTER, and its fate seems to be settled. So perishes another sweet hope of the consumptive.

What a rattling candidate the Kniser would make for the People's party over here in 1852! Yesterday, backed up by only five hours' sleep, he listened to innumerable addresses from as many delegations, answered them all courteously. galloped twice in Rotten Row and attended a lawn party at Marlborough House. who lately set out for a fourney into East Central Africa, has penetrated to Lake Chala, a point which had been decined unattainable, even by explorers of the sterner sex. She accomplished her task in the face of illness and other dangers. All hall the plack of this new scarcher of the Dark Continent.

Kissing a presty notress night after night looks like a pleasant way to earn one's solary. Hat over in Hoboken it got the kisser, who was a faithful actor, into trouble with a jealous special policeman, who loved the gurl. Bloodshed was prevented, and londs to keep the peace now control the too anxious lover.

Tales unfolded in the divores court aralways pitiful. More than ever so when the exposure of trouble between a husband and wife comes in the deepening evening of their lives. The DEPENDER sait is a sad surprise to friends of that old family.

A Hartford mother got drunk and let her child nurse itself from the gin bottle instead of the bottle of milk. It is greatly to the credit of the gin that all reports agree that it didn't hurt the baby.

An Arkansas widow of eighty years found her sight restored on getting rid of a troublesome molar. In this case it was a tooth for an eye. Which is different from the Scriptural reading.

They deem the selection of such a subject inadvisable and unnecessary, and many have expressed their reluctance to appear in such a play. The role of John Wilkes Booth has been offered to E. J. Henley, Mr. Henley was promptly advised by friends who have been in this country longer than he has to reject the part. He has consequently sent to his refusal and will not appear in "Abraham Lincoln," although as yet he has no other engagement. Henley's course has been approved. It is quite useless to tell the actors that in dramatizing the episodes of a stirring career Messes. Gordon and Rankin cannot omit the most sensational incidents. They are very loyal to their leader, Edwin Booth. Even though the public at the present time has seemed inclined to vote Booth as listless and Tom Hughes, a wealthy ex-miner, temporarily stopping in this city, who lived for twenty-three years in the vicinity of the Salton Basin in Southern California, tells me that there ought to have been no mystery regarding the source of the great lake which has threatened to submerge that entire territory. It comes from the Colorada River which overflows into it every Spring and Summer, he says. The fact that the overflow is greater this year than usual, he ascribes to the unusual rainfall and consequent increased accumulation of snow in the mountains which is now feeding the flood.
